This casebook reflects the changes brought about by the Treaty of Lisbon of December 2009. Divided into seven parts, this casebook allows teachers the flexibility to tailor their courses. Parts I and II, respectively, treat the legal/institutional framework of the European Union and the enforcement of EU law in the member states. The remaining part cover all aspects of the internal market and its free movement principles; European competition policy; the EU's external (including trade) relations; issues surrounding the euro; and a sampling of EU policy areas, e.g., social policy and environmental and consumer protection.
