Not illustrated. 1865 Excerpt: ... country; therefore, they wait upon you, and demand that I shall attempt to express what they so deeply feel. Traitors would have us believe that you have jeopardized your life for negro equality in an Abolition war. They defame you and all loyal men. It is "Sneh stuff as madmen Tongue and brain not." You did not leave us for such an object or such a contest. You enlisted under the banner of the Sovereign of the world, which Mirabeau declared to be " Right,'I' but which is truly God. You have fought the fight; you have kept the faith; the fight against crime, the faith in the justice of the equality of our race. The trials and sacrifices are for a Government ordained of Heaven, and which impious men have conspired to destroy. If our fathers are enshrined in our affections for establishing our institutions, we will hold m everlasting remembrance, and history will immortalize those heroes who, by their valor, shall preserve us a nation. The eyes of a world are resting upon you and your companions in arms. Tyrants Tear your success, and the down-trodden tremble lest your fortune shall be defeat. The greatest interests are in your keeping; the wealth of toil, the honors of the student, the triumphs of genius, the temple and home of the wife, the mother, and the child. We congratulate you upon the early deliverance from the hands of the enemies of the country; from the grasp of those who only intent upon destruction, have set all the usages of civilized warfare at defiance, and added unspeakable barbarism to murder--"More fierce and more inexorable far, Than empty tigers or the roaring 'ea." Bear with you our blessing, for we bless you: Citizen soldier, you have the prayers of all good men, and the Lord of Hosts is on your side. General, a...
