Countries around the world are engaged in health reform, which places great demands on health care providers and systems managers. From the managed care revolution in the United States to the rebuilding of health systems in postcommunist Russia, these reforms impact millions of health care workers, government officials, patients, and the public alike.

The New Public Health will help students and practitioners understand factors affecting the reform process of health care organization and delivery. It links the classic public health issues such as environmental sanitation, health education, and epidemiology with the new issues of universal health care, economics, and management of health systems for the new century.

Key Features:

- * Provides a comprehensive overview of public health from a global perspective
- * Assesses health systems models of the United States, Russia, the United Kingdom, Germany, Canada, Scandinavian countries, and developing countries including China, Nigeria, and Colombia
- * Analyzes critical issues of health economics, including forces associated with escalating costs and the strategies to control those costs
- * Discusses strategies for dealing with the many ramifications of managed care
- * Links medicine with the social sciences, technology, and health management issues as they evolve
