Grieving God's Way: He Feels Your Pain Buffy MacDonald Crabtree

Grieving God's Way is Buffy MacDonald Crabtree's guide and comfort for those who grieve. Following her husband's death, the author turned to God for spiritual strength to guide her through the grieving process. Readers will recognize the myriad of emotions they experience, the need to remove themselves from guilt and blame, and the importance of walking with God through their journey of grief. Crabtree urges readers to know that God realizes they may be angry at Him, but that He loves and cares for them and that they can find strength in Him. She encourages those who mourn to rely on others for help, and explains ways to care for themselves and their families. One chapter covers decisions those in sorrow need to make. With a loving and encouraging voice, she leads readers toward expressing their emotions, shares prayers with them, and teaches them how to thwart Satan's attacks when they are weak - all steps that bring one closer to a sense of well being and strength. "Overwhelmed by the death of a spouse or close family member? This book will walk with you, step by step, through the journey. You'll learn how to find healing and hope for the future." Steve Grissom, Founder, GriefShare "Five Stars (out of Five)" ForeWard Clarion Review
